What happens during a Laser Hair Loss Therapy treatment?

In your first consultation with a practitioner you should clearly explain your expectations of the laser hair loss therapy treatment. Your practitioner should then tell you whether this is the right treatment for you and whether it can achieve the results you would like.

Make sure that you obtain as much information as necessary to enable you to make a fully informed decision about this procedure.

The practitioner should also ask for your medical history to make sure that there are no reasons why you should not undergo low-level laser treatment using Minoxidil and Saw-Palmetto tablets. At this point, you would be asked to sign a consent form which means that you have understood the future benefits and possible risks associated with the procedure.

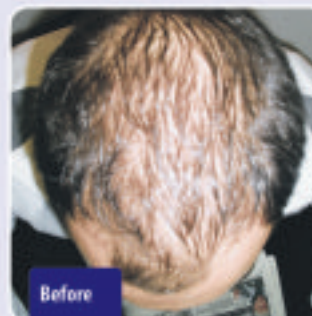

Photographs of the area to be treated may also be taken by the practitioner for a "before and after" comparison.

During treatment the laser therapy machine sits over your head. The laser hood is a static device which holds a number of laser diodes. It looks exactly the same as a hooded dryer you see at hairdressers. The diodes emit a specific wavelength and frequency of light, delivering low level light therapy to the hair follicles.

You do not feel anything at all under the machine and the session takes about 30-60 minutes.

Repeat treatments are required weekly for approximately 6-8 months, depending on the extent of hair loss.

As well as sessions under the laser device, you will normally be given specific hair care and hair re-growth products for at-home use, in combination with the laser therapy, to achieve the best results possible.

Iconic town store to close after 83 years in business

White & Bishop, a name synonymous with shopping in Northampton, is to close its Bridge Street store after 83 years in the town.

The outdoor goods retailer has taken the decision to concentrate on its growing on-line business, and will close its doors for the final time on Saturday, July 27.

The store was first opened by Walter White in 1930, supplying country and work wear to the farmers of the county.

It later became known for sheepskin coats, and camping equipment, and in the late 1970s, the outdoor centre was added.

Managing director, Steve Moseley, said it had been a "hard decision" to leave Northampton, but it was important the business moved with the times. He also said the current restrictions in Bridge Street had influenced the decision, but this was secondary to the need to concentrate on the on-line business.

He said: "We have increased our web business over the last five years. It has doubled in the last three years and trebled in the last five.

"It has been a very exciting way forward and has meant we have been able to expand our ranges nationally, and get a little bit of international trade as well.

"It is a new chapter for us, against the background of the economic decline, and the change in consumer buying patterns.

"The reason we have been here for 83 years is because we have embraced change, and evolved from a farmer's outfitter, to a sheepskin and country store to an outdoor centre.

"The deterioration of Bridge Street is a secondary reason. Bridge Street is a street for estate agents and theme bars and although our customers are loyal, we are clearly a destination store.

"The restriction of traffic flow has been a problem for the last 18 months. We recognise what the council is doing, but it has had an effect on footfall.

"Because we have been here all these years, it is a sad day. However, we have another store in Rugby which is doing well, and we have to move on. We have customers who have become friends and have been loyal to us for many, many years. That is the real sadness."

A 30 per cent off sale started on Saturday. See www.whiteandbishop.co.uk for on-line shopping.

Plans are unveiled

The vice-chancellor of The University of Northampton has said the institution could share its new town centre campus with a "very well-known" business.

The university has officially unveiled the first detailed plans for its proposed new £330 million campus on vacant land off Nunn Mills Road, within the Waterside Enterprise Zone.

As well as providing teaching space for students, a new library, sports pitches and reception area, the new campus also includes three new commercial office spaces.

Professor Nick Petford, vice-chancellor of the university, said the institution was currently in talks with a number of businesses who were interested in moving to Northampton town centre.

He said: "There is a lot of work going on behind the scenes. The offices could potentially be filled by one big partner."

"We are talking to some very well-known businesses."

Professor Petford said he also wanted the new campus

The plans also include a

Key-cloning warning to owners of BMWs

Owners of high-end BMW cars in villages around Northampton have been warned about possible key-cloning thieves, after four cars were stolen in as many days.

Northamptonshire Police this week warned owners of BMWs following thefts in Wollaston, Bozeat, Great Doddington and Earls Barton.

The first two thefts happened last Thursday night, in Neale Close, Wollaston, and in Church Lane, Bozeat.

Then, between Sunday night and Monday morning, two more BMW cars were stolen, firstly from Station Road, in Earls Barton, and finally in Hardwater Road, Great Doddington.

Police have been delivering leaflets in the villages to make drivers aware of the thefts, which detectives are linking.

Pc Peter Littleton, told the Chronicle & Echo: "They were all from different villages, but obviously the villages are all very close. We had two overnight on June 6/7 and then we had a further two on June 9/10.

Expensive BMW cars have been stolen by thieves who cloned keys

"The cars stolen all tend to be petrol driven M-class BMWs, so they are a sports-type vehicle really."

Police say criminals could be using an "on-board diagnostics bypass tool" to allow them to program a blank car key-fob and simply drive the cars away.

Pc Littleton added: "The offences have tended to happen in the middle of the night. What happens a lot of the time with these vehicles after they have been stolen is they will just park them up in a random location and leave it there for a few days in case they have a tracking device."

He told owners to contact their BMW dealership about possible system upgrades.

A police spokesman said: "These crimes are currently being investigated and officers have been conducting extra patrols in the area."

Officers meanwhile are urging owners to use a garage or driveway and to use mechanical immobilisers, such as steering wheel locks.

Heritage project aims to boost pride

Historians said they hoped the creation of a 'heritage gateway' to commemorate Northampton's former castle will boost pride in the town.

Northamptonshire County Council's cabinet this week backed plans for the five-year, £8.5 million project which will see a park and heritage trail created next to the town's new railway station.

Speaking to the cabinet, Dr Marie Dickie, who is chairman of the Friends of Northampton Castle, said: "We've lost a lot of our heritage in Northampton, partly because our Victorian ancestors saw nothing good about the past and only wanted to see the future.

"But we not only lost some beautiful heritage, we lost the memory of who we were. I think it's so important for us to tell our children now that they have a proud heritage. They belong to somewhere that was very important in the past and still is now. That should raise their aspirations."

The castle was once used as a seat of Parliament and was the location for the trial of Thomas Becket in 1164.

It was partially demolished by King Charles II in 1662, then finally cleared in 1879 so the station could be built.

As part of the heritage development, a disused office block next to the station could be demolished. The council agreed to grant an initial investment of £750,000 towards the gateway project this week to kick-start the project.

Medieval coin found at the castle site excavation

Artefacts are found at railway station site

●● Archaeologists at the site of Northampton's new railway station have found artefacts dating back to the 10th century. Latest finds include a medieval silver penny and two Saxon oil lamps. The remains of a building have also been identified as a 12th century workshop, which stood in the grounds of Northampton Castle. Work will now start on the foundations of the £20 million new station, which is due to be completed by autumn 2014.

Cloudy2Clear Windows – Service With A Smile!

It's been a crazy few months for Cloudy2Clear Windows. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has grown rapidly as homeowners take advantage of their services.

Managing Director Trevor Skidmore feels that it's all about service. "Our product is simple. If your double glazing is misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 5 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Many tradespeople have struggled since last year and I honestly feel that during the good times a minority perhaps didn't focus on customer care as much as they should have done. We make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle. I often get comments back from customers on how they really didn't expect that sort of service which, in a way, is very sad for the service industry as a whole."

Cloudy2Clear service the Northampton, Kettering, Wellingborough & Corby areas and Trevor is finding that his approach is a major factor in his success. "The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I've done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated."

So, if your windows are steamed up, broken or damaged give Trevor a call for a free quotation on 0800 61 21 118 and he'll be happy to help!

Kieran's parents inspired to help

The parents of a Northampton rugby player, who suffered a shattered kidney during a match, have been inspired to sign up to blood and organ donor registers.

Kieran O'Connor, aged 22, was playing for Old Northamptonians when an opposing player's knee accidentally caused the horrific injury, which doctors said was worse than a 70 mph car crash.

His playing days are now over, but his dad Shaun has signed up to the national organ and blood donation registers in a tribute to NGH and East Midlands Ambulance Service staff.

In an open letter to NGH staff, he said: "I would like to extend my thanks and extreme gratitude to all who dealt with Kieran's shocking injury. Thank you to the paramedic on the rugby pitch, the ambulance crew and the staff on A&E. Thanks also to Mr Potter and his surgical team. If it were not for their grit and determination I am sure he would not have made it through.

"Thank you also to the staff on ITU who were excellent in both their communication, compassion and level of care administered. Thank you also to the nurses and staff on both Willow and Hawthorn wards for aiding in his quick recovery and subsequent discharge from hospital. All in all a very positive, informative and caring experience."

Although almost fully recovered now doctors had to remove Kieran's kidney and he lost six pints of blood.

Kieran said: "It's excellent they're doing this because of me. If it prevents people from being in the situation I was very nearly in myself, or even just raise awareness, that would be great."

Row over rumble strip rumbles on

Part of a rumble strip that Northamptonshire County Council insists is vital to road safety has been resurfaced over with asphalt, but highway officers have given it the green light.

The controversial road surface has been keeping residents of Gladstone Road, Spencer, awake for years.

But a utility company carrying out cable repairs dug up the special material, which is designed to alert drivers they are travelling too fast, and left patches of asphalt in its place.

Ward councillor Gareth Eales (Lab, Spencer), said: "The reasons council officers gave us that the rumble strip can't be taken up were partly the cost, but the main reason was safety; the strip is supposed to be a speed deterrent. "Residents will now be wondering why the rest of the surface needs to stay."

Sleep-deprived neighbours complained about the torturous round-the-clock din which some compared to an aircraft taking off, and the road has subsequently been dubbed 'Insomnia Road'.

'It cost lots of money to look better...but look at the road now'

They were subsequently offered a compromise of the removal of some of the problem material at a cost to the council of £50,000.

Residents at a public meeting in March voted to reject the deal, believing it to be only an opening offer.

But the council then said it would not negotiate further, leaving the road covered by the rumble strip surface.

Councillor Eales said: "It cost millions of pounds and was supposed to make the road more aesthetically pleasing, but look at it now."

"The council seems to think it's fine even though the new surface fulfils none of the original criteria of the rumble strip."

Contractors have resurfaced over specially designed rumble strips. Residents have been kept awake since the new 'rumble strips' were installed and have called for the rest of the road to be covered over

Council won't pay for repairs, but firm may do

●● A Northamptonshire County Council spokeswoman said: "The road surface has achieved average speed reductions of 6mph and if this has been damaged by an external company, we would look to ensure the company takes action to restore the surface to its original condition. "There have been concerns about a noisy road surface. "We offered a solution which has been rejected. "Any further work on this road would be dependent on further funding becoming available," the spokeswoman added.

Cobblers boss proud of charity bike ride

Northampton Town football manager Aidy Boothroyd said his cycle trek from London to Paris was the best charity work he has ever undertaken.

The Cobblers boss cycled the 450km between the capitals to raise funds for Leukaemia & Lymphoma Research, a charity for which former footballer Geoff Thomas is an ambassador.

It represents the third such charity event Boothroyd has undertaken in the past three years and although the physical work was arduous, the 42-year-old was happy to do it.

"I did Kilimanjaro when I was 40, I did London to Paris in three days last year and then in four days this year," he said.

"This one was by far the best, it was really, really good and I think it's important to put something back. It's a fantastic cause because it raises funds for research."

Leukaemia has affected football greatly in the past year, with the illness forcing

Aidy Boothroyd (far left) cycled from London to Paris to raise money for leukaemia research

Aston Villa captain into retirement at the age of just 33.

As a father of two, Boothroyd is also aware of the positive impact research has had on treating the condition in children.

"It used to be that 90 per cent of kids that got leukaemia died and now there's a 90 per cent chance of survival as a kid," he said.

"There are have been a lot of high-profile cases in football lately with Stilian Petrov and Geoff Thomas but everyone has a connection to cancer in one way or another.

"It's worth doing and I'm very fortunate to be fit and healthy so I think it's right to give something back."

Harborough and Lutterworth

A practical dash of Italian flair

ROAD TEST FIAT 500L

BY JONATHAN CROUCH
www.motortoday.co.uk

The 500L is Fiat's bold answer to customer and dealer demands for a grown-up alternative to the small but so successful, 500.

A five-seater compact MPV that doesn't feel like one, taking care of people and baggage-carrying chores with a practical dash of Italian flair.

And, perhaps best of all, allowing for individual personalisation through an option list clever and extensive enough to set new benchmarks for the class.

You tend to approach this 500L expecting it to be a pumped-up version of the 500 city car – which it isn't.

To make this model as big as it needed to be – fully 60cm longer and 18cm taller than an ordinary 500, so in Fiat terms, longer than a Punto supermini

New benchmarks for class and as wide as a Bravo family hatch – Andreas Wuppinger's styling team had to use a Punto floorplan as the basis for something quite different.

Then give the end result a recognisable 500-style twist, hence the familiar wide-eyed front end.

It isn't only the concept, the size and the styling of this model that's different from the 500 city car.

The price is very different and reasonable, too.

Those we love remain with us for love itself lives on, and cherished memories never fade because a loved one's gone.

Those we love can never be more than a thought apart, for as long as there is memory, they'll live on in the heart.

Grayson proud of protégé Myler

Saints fly-half impresses after winning first England cap

RUGBY UNION

By TOM VICKERS
Sports writer
tom.vickers@jpress.co.uk

Paul Grayson has admitted his pride at seeing Stephen Myler win his first England cap.

And he has backed the Saints fly-half to stay in the mix for the autumn internationals campaign later this year.

Grayson brought Myler to Franklin's Gardens from Salford City Reds in 2006 and oversaw the player's transformation from rugby league hopeful to rugby union success story.

It culminated with Myler, who is now second only to Grayson in Northampton's all-time points scorers list, winning his first Test cap last Saturday.

The 28-year-old came off the bench with 14 minutes to go as England beat Argentina to seal a 2-0 Test series win, in Buenos Aires.

And Grayson, whose 19-year association with Saints came to an end last November, said: "I brought him to the club and he's worked on his game for a number of years.

"He's played in some pretty big games and he's always put himself forward for selection for the Saxons.

"In a Lions year when you've got overseas tours there are going to be opportunities to get in there and stake your claim. It's fantastic and well done him."

Grayson believes Myler will face a crucial six-week period at the start of next season as he aims to build on the South America tour.

But the Saints legend feels his former charge is more than capable of making more of a mark on the international stage.

"All you can do as a player is when you get your opportunity, take it," he said.

"Stephen would have been hurting post-Premiership final, but he was taken on tour and he didn't let himself down by any stretch of the imagination.

"It was a good series win for England and he did it in front of Stuart Lancaster, who knows him from some of his Saxons stuff as well. He holds Stephen in high regard so he's ticked the boxes.

"All he can do now is have a rest, get back to pre-season and it's only ever going to be your club form that's going to force you in."

MYLES BETTER – Saints fly-half Stephen Myler won his first England cap as England beat Argentina last Saturday

KEEPING IT TIGHT – Cobblers boss Aidy Boothroyd

Aidy sticks to budget

AIDY BOOTHROYD says the Cobblers will not spend beyond their means as he prepares to tweak his Sixfields squad this summer.

Club finances are reasonably healthy at the moment, with several highly-paid players such as Adebayo Akinfenwa and Jake Robinson having departed, and the gate receipts from the npower League Two play-off final starting to filter through.

Although the revenue from the May 18 showpiece is understood to be not as high as originally planned for, it still represents an unexpected source of income.

Northampton's budget is expected to be around seventh or eighth in the league table of league two spenders, with Fleetwood again splashing the cash to pick up the likes of Matty Blair from York City and Bury midfielder Steven Schumacher.

But the emphasis will be on financial prudence at a club who spent more money on players last season than they did in the previous eight years.

"We won't offer anyone anything that we can't afford," said Boothroyd, who is in the market for a striker, a goalkeeper and a left-sided midfielder at the very least.

"A lot of clubs at our level are better run than clubs at the higher levels because they have got a lot more money.

"We're in a situation where it's got to be a tightly-run ship and we hope to punch above our weight but we have to do it sensibly."
